

ALBERTA WHEAT POOL CROP INFORMATION FOR THE WHOLE PROVINCE

On May 17th 94 per cent of wheat seeding was completed in Alberta and 90 per cent of coarse grain, according to information supplied from 372 Alberta Pool elevator points. In the Edmonton district, the region west and northwest of same, wheat seeding was completed. The latest district is the area running west and northwest of Medicine Hat. In this territory 84 per cent of seeding was completed a week ago.

The information gathered reveals the fact that wheat acreage reduction will be around 10 per cent. It is obvious that the northern and central Alberta farmers are reducing wheat to a greater extent than those in southern Alberta. The largest reduction is indicated in the Peace River area and in the regions east and west of Edmonton. In this territory the average reduction is around 24 per cent. In the Red Deer-Lacombe division the reduction is around 20 per cent. From Olds southward the wheat acreage reduction varies from 20 per cent to 10 per cent. Along the southern section of the province the wheat acreage reduction is 15 per cent. The smallest reduction is in the area from Calgary south to Staveland and Carmangay, the figure being only 12 per cent.

Deficiency of moisture is still causing anxiety over a large area which is chiefly within a triangle whose boundaries extend from Olds north-easterly to Vermilion, thence westerly to a point west of Edmonton. Spring precipitation over this area has been scanty and high winds have caused rapid moisture evaporation. Rain was general during the past week over the southern districts. As a result, the moisture content there is somewhat improved, and further west this week will more than offset the damage by drying winds. Surface moisture is now sufficient for germination in southern Alberta.

The moisture situation north of the Lloydminster-Edmonton line is considered satisfactory, although the ground is also a deficiency of sub-soil moisture in many parts of this area. Conditions in the Peace River district are very satisfactory. Seeding has been completed in the case of wheat and most of the coarse grains are now sown. This is unusually early for that district. Abundant moisture has been received there.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT REVIEWED WEEKLY BY MAJOR H.G.L. STRANGE

For good health the foods consumed daily by human beings must contain a minimum amount of a precious element, Vitamin B-1.

Certain animal products, such as liver, heart, kidney, and particularly pork in its various forms, have a high content of Vitamin B-1, and it is through the medium of these foods that people normally obtain this vitamin which their health requires.

The war, however, has greatly reduced the quantity of these meat products available to European people, but it has been found that Vitamin B-1 can be added artificially to flour and bread. This now by law must be done with all flour and bread consumed in Great Britain.

A Canadian Dominion committee under the supervision of Dr. L.H. Newman, Dominion Cereals, has found a method of making a palatable white loaf, that contains quite a large amount of Vitamin B-1, out of the new rat-resistant wheat varieties, which apparently have a higher content of Vitamin B-1 than ordinary wheats. Another method proposed is to use the whole wheat kernel after having removed merely the epidemic and outer skin. It is claimed that this skinned kernel makes a palatable loaf high in protein and in Vitamin B-1. Out of these different methods and experiments it is hoped that bread will soon become more nutritious and no longer deficient in Vitamin B-1. It is further hoped, will be consumed in greater quantities.

EXCELLENT GUNNERY AND EXCELLENT GUANS—An officer of a British anti-aircraft battery which recently shot down 22 German planes visited the factory where his guns were made. He praised the workers, and said it was actually through their fine work that his battery had brought down so many of the enemy raiders.

MR. AND MRS. JACOB J. OHLHAUSER CELEBRATE THEIR SILVER WEDDING

Program Put On At Freudenrich Church

On Sunday evening, May 25th, the Freudenrich Baptist Church congregation celebrated the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob J. Ohlhauser, who are very active members of that church. Mr. Ohlhauser has for many years been a deacon of the church, and Mrs. Ohlhauser is the vice president of the Ladies' Aid.

Although the weather was bad, many friends from outside were present, including Mr. and Mrs. Ohlhauser's parents from Calgary, and Mr. and Mrs. Dickau of Wetaskiwin.

The church and the dining room were nicely decorated for the occasion and a fine program was provided by friends and relatives of the popular couple.

The speakers for the evening were Rev. R. Milbrund of Calgary, Mr. Ohlhauser and Mr. Schell, fathers of the couple, Mr. Alf, who presented Mrs. Ohlhauser with a bouquet of flowers from the Ladies' Aid, and Rev. Alf, who congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Ohlhauser and presented them with a gift from the church.

Following the presentation the crowd went to the dining room where cake and refreshments were served, and a large wedding cake was cut for the friends and relatives present.

The wedding was held at their farm south west of Carbon and a family of seven children are the result of the occasion.

PROVINCIAL NEWS NOTES

The University of Alberta Medical school will operate through the summer recess in order to speed up the supply of medical men, now needed in Canada. The shortage is felt mostly in the Canadian army. Preparing for fifth year students, carry on with their studies and graduates, that much sooner have become a reality and students will go back early in July.

Ottawa officials visited Edmonton exhibition grounds last week on an inspection tour prior to final arrangements being made for taking over by the Royal Canadian Air Force training school.

Edmonton will have a three-cornered election fight on June 2, when voters will go to the polls to fill the vacant seat in the House of Commons. Contestants are representative of liberal, social credit and a new "people's movement". The election was made necessary by the death of Pres. Coadman, whose widow is contesting the seat.

Egg production in Alberta showed an increase during 1930, it is reported by the Dominion bureau of statistics. In 1930 the total production amounted to 32,617,000 dozen, compared with 30,927,000 dozen in 1929.

Empire Forces Marching Into African-Won Territory

The following address was delivered at the Carbon United Church on Sunday morning, May 25th, by Mr. P.H. Steele, principal of Carbon School: "Yesterday, May 24th, now known as 'Empire Day', began its career as 'Victoria Day', the birthday of Queen Victoria, the birthday of the Empire. It was during the reign of Queen Victoria that the Empire took on the form which it has today. Canada became a self-governing Dominion in 1867; Queen Victoria became Empress of India in 1877. The Boer War, which was to consolidate South Africa was going on at the time of her death, and Australia formed the Commonwealth on the 1st of January, 1901, 22 days before the death of the great Queen.

Contrary to the usual custom, the day was not discontinued on the accession of a new sovereign, but was kept on for some twenty years more. Then, when the question came up of discontinuing the holiday, but few people so popular that a Royal Empire Society was formed of which Viscount Bledisloe, president, whose object could all join in celebrating the unity of the Empire. For a year or two, about 1925, the observance of the day was made optional, then the Empire Movement gained its objective and Victoria day returned as an Empire holiday under its new name and wider significance of Empire Unity. For this reason, it is fitting that we today, when this Empire is undergoing such a tremendous strain, should take stock of our position in that Empire and of our relationship to it.

Canada, looking at its position as a connecting link between the Empire and the United States, and because of its selection as the air training centre for much of the Empire, has probably more reason for becoming Empire-minded than any other part of the Empire except Great Britain. There are more men from outside Canada, training for flying in this country than there are Canadians. The streets of Calgary and other cities are liberally sprinkled with new automobiles plainly advertising them as British, or Australian, or New Zealanders, and beside this there are not a few from across the border. The United States and Canada co-operate very closely in the defence of the Western Hemisphere. In fact, Canada has become the main link in holding the English-speaking people together. What a chance we have of promoting better understanding amongst them if we will only seize it!

Patriotism is defined as "Love of one's country" or "Devotion to the welfare of one's country". It includes both an emotional attitude and an active attitude. In an Empire such as ours Patriotism can be dangerous and a disuniting force as well as a uniting force. Especially is this true of the emotional phase of patriotism.

Because of the emotional phase of patriotism, we feel that we are as much better than the colored people of Africa, than the people of India, than the orientals of Malaya. Because of the emotional phase of patriotism, all those little differences and suspicions which are liable to arise where people loathe one another and compete with one another, are always in danger of breaking down our development as a people as a whole. The separate provinces have their own prejudices as they tend to wrangle with each other and with the Dominion government. Canada competes with Australia, and with the other parts of the Commonwealth, and so disrupting conditions as stresses result. We have had a tendency to allow our patriotism to take the form of rivalry to our own group instead of taking the wider, imperial view, in a great number of cases. We should seize this opportunity when the visitors are in our midst to get to know them and their side of the question, and to seek ways to co-operate with them in peace time as well as in time of war.

So far, there is one type of emotional patriotism of which we have been comparatively free in this war: the yelling, flag-waving variety. We are lucky in this regard—not because it is wrong in itself—but from it. A people undergoing strain such as war entails, needs to break out and relieve its emotions; once in a while. But there is this danger: Our emotions were given to us to help us to meet sudden, short dangers, when we must call up all our energies for a short period of time. They aren't sustaining, in fact, they are exhausting. There is no true statement that that familiarity breeds contempt—or, at least, dispraise. People can become immune to almost anything, and too much emotional patriotism of the flag-waving variety has a tendency to dull people's ardour, and this is no time to allow our efforts to lag. We must carry on deliberately, forcefully—for years, if need be—until we come out of this struggle with our freedom intact and our safety assured.

But true patriotism is not only a feeling, but something must be done about it. It is devotion to the welfare of our country. And in the doing, we should always be sure that what we are doing is really for the welfare of our country. Mr. Hanson, leader of the Opposition Party in the House of Commons, in a radio broadcast a week ago Friday, pledged the full support of the Conservative party to the government in carrying out its policy. It is necessary to win this war. We should all do that. It is Mr. Hanson's job to criticize and even to find fault with the government. If he, while criticizing, is in that cause, can we pledge his support to the government, we have no reason to hedge and to waver. In this time of stress, when this tiny struggle, We must get behind our government and do our very best to carry out its orders, and working together under one leadership, and by doing what we have to do to win this war.

And in this regard, I wish to say something to those who attend this school. It is my belief that anything which they may do, no matter how important it may seem at the present time, if it interferes with their education, then it is less to the welfare of our country than their learning in school. Canada needs work done. Canada needs hands raised. But Canada, the Empire, needs most of all, High School graduates to train for the nursing profession, competent stenographers and bookkeepers to keep departments running smoothly, competent mathematicians to plan, to handle artillery, officers and more officers of all kinds to direct those who carry hands raised. But Canada, the Empire, needs most of all, High School graduates to train for the nursing profession, competent stenographers and bookkeepers to keep departments running smoothly, competent mathematicians to plan, to handle artillery, officers and more officers of all kinds to direct those who carry hands raised. But Canada, the Empire, needs most of all, High School graduates to train for the nursing profession, competent stenographers and bookkeepers to keep departments running smoothly, competent mathematicians to plan, to handle artillery, officers and more officers of all kinds to direct those who carry hands raised.

What we need more than anything else today are trained leaders and trained workers, and it is my opinion that any young man or young woman who neglects his education for what he thinks he is able to do today is

WARD-HAY

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Rev. McNeill in Calgary at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, May 26th, when the Rev. Mr. McNeill, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Alf of Carbon, became the bride and groom. The bride was Miss Mary Ward, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ward, also of the Carbon district. Mr. and Mrs. George Ward, Calgary, were witnesses, and the bride wore a light blue dress with a corsage of pink roses.

The bride has been teaching school at Avondale for the past couple of years, and the groom is with the R.C.A.F., stationed at the Alcraft Training School at Stratford, Ontario.

Mick Sherry returned from Calgary hospital Saturday, where he recently underwent an appendicectomy.

H. M. McNaughton and S.N. Wright returned to the Little Red seal of Olds on Saturday, May 24th.

An officer of the R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, Calgary, will visit Carbon on Friday, June 6th, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the purpose of interviewing persons desiring of making application for enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

76 INCHES OF MOISTURE REPORTED AT CARBON UP TO TUESDAY NIGHT

Rain Still Continues To Pelt Down Wednesday

Rain and snow fell intermittently in the Carbon district from Saturday evening till Monday night, and in all a total of 76 inches of moisture was reported at Carbon. To the south the fields were covered with about three inches of snow Sunday morning, and fields have been thoroughly soaked, spraying ample moisture to germ into the seed and carry it along for some time.

Roads were bad till Tuesday morning and the gravel highway through town cut down badly in spots, although traffic was light.

The storm was general over southern Alberta and extended as far north as Stettler and Red Deer. Snow was general, although no heavy frost was reported up to Tuesday night. Most of the seeding in the Carbon district has now been completed and farmers this week are waiting for a critical time for late sown grain.

Wednesday morning rain again set in, but with a heavy shower of rain, with no let up in sight as we go to press in the afternoon. It looks like a three day rain.

BROKEN EGGS AND DAMAGED FRUIT DELAY MAIL TO THE SOLDIERS

Damaged fruit, broken glass jars which had contained maple syrup, and cartons of fresh eggs, all broken, causing damage to the surrounding mails, are being removed from parcels addressed to our Overseas Troops at the Base Post Office, Ottawa.

Canadian Postal officials have reported to Hon. William P. Mulock, K.C., Postmaster General, that last week 12 parcels in the bag of army mail contained a despatch because they required repacking, as a result of the damage to a class of maple syrup in one parcel. Fresh eggs that had been enclosed in wrapping, along with two tins of maple syrup, in another parcel had also broken and, along with canned fruit, wrapped in paper cover and two thin cartons of eggs merely wrapped in paper were reported for other packages.

The above examples illustrate the folly of sending perishable or fragile articles through the mail to our Troops, especially in view of the long journey by land and sea under war conditions. The sender of such perishable goods likely to spoil within the time required for transportation should be advised to send the goods likely to become damaged in transit, are not acceptable for mailing.

If a parcel is found to be worth care in packing. All parcels should be fully prepaid, securely packed, and properly addressed. The return address of the sender should be clearly marked on the cover. The sender should appear on the cover. Complicated Customs declaration forms are required on all parcels for our Troops abroad. Parcels for Overseas should be addressed as follows:

Regimental Number, Rank, Name, Name and Details of Unit (i.e. Company or Section, Squadron, Battery, Holding Unit, etc.), Name of Regiment or Branch of Service, Canadian Army Overseas.

FRENCH SYRIA MAY BE USED BY ENEMY AIRCRAFT

London.—British authorities announced in Cairo that many German fighters are arriving on the airfields of French Syria and waiting for Iraq, and orders went out to the Royal Air Force and navy planes to smash the invaders on the landing fields of both these countries.

Informed sources at the headquarters of the British Middle East command in Cairo said most of the German craft were bombers, but no troop-carrying planes had yet been sighted, but that fighters were transporting technicians, propagandists and other Nazi specialists to the Middle Eastern scenes of war or near-war.

Italian and German staff officers including two generals, were reported to have reached Baghdad, capital of Iraq, and a high German official was believed to have established himself in the French mandate.

Already, the R.A.F. was announcing that planes of the first air arm had entered the Iraq conflict and, in co-operation with regular R.A.F. squadrons, was reducing the number of remaining barracks, gasoline stores, munitions plants and other military objectives.

Some observers inferred that the astonishing flight to Britain of Rudolf Hess, the German Nazi leader, had spurred Hitler to earlier action than he had, perhaps planned, but others did not preclude the possibility that the Hess affair was linked with the general Nazi plan for new offensives.

Li-Gen, Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, former commander of the army of the Nile, now has been made general officer commanding British forces in Palestine and Trans-Jordan following Axis capture of the former G.O.C.M. Maj-Gen. Philip Neame, in Africa.

Informed sources view this as a natural selection in view of the importance of Palestine and Trans-Jordan as avenues guarding the eastern and northern approaches to Syria. There has been considerable uneasiness in the Holy Land ever since the Iraq trouble started, especially since the exiled grand mufti of Jerusalem is reported to have received strong Axis financial and other support to arouse the Arabs against Britain.

At the same time the prospect of the French Mandate's involvement in the struggle over Iraq was read into a declaration by Foreign Secretary Eden that "full authority" had been given to British forces to attack German planes in Syria.

Eden told the House of Commons: "The French government cannot escape responsibility for this situation. Their action under German orders in permitting these flights is a clear breach of the armistice terms and is inconsistent with the assurances given by the French government."

The commons greeted this announcement with prolonged cheers. Some credence was given by observers to recent reports the Vichy government might suddenly grant the Syrians full independence in order to reach Vichy's hands of responsibility for the German use of Syrian airfields.

Britain's Fire Fighters

Are To Be Nationalized To Cope With Air Attacks

London.—Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, told Commons a plan to nationalize all Britain's fire fighters to cope with German air attacks. He said the government would ask parliament for power to place every fire brigade in the country under control of the home secretary and secretary of state for Scotland.

Strikes And Lockouts

Ottawa.—Thirty-two strikes and lockouts involving 19,400 workers with time loss of 76,500 man working days were recorded during April, the labor department reported. This compared with 19 disputes involving 13,839 workers and time loss of 64,414 days in April, 1940.

Had To Cancel Plans

Bucharest.—Food riots which hundreds sought to buy up large supplies of bread have been followed by government cancellation of plans for two breadless days each week.

Exhibiting Plans

London.—The wreckage of the Messerschmitt-110 from which Rudolf Hess parachuted onto Scottish soil was collected and exhibited during London's war weapons week.

Minimum Prices For Butter

Order Issued By Dairy Producers Board Now In Effect
Ottawa.—Minimum prices for butter—26½ cents a pound for May first-grade creamery solids delivered in Saskatchewan, 27½ cents in Alberta and Manitoba and 29½ cents in British Columbia and eastern provinces were announced by the committee on Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

The order setting minimum prices was issued by the dairy products board and will be effective immediately.

Dairy officials explained these were the lowest prices at which butter could be sold in the various provinces and therefore would be the prices of the manufacturer with the retail prices correspondingly higher. Under the order, the minimum prices of butter increase to a top, reached in October, of 32 cents a pound for British Columbia and eastern provinces, 30 cents in Alberta and Manitoba and 29 cents in Saskatchewan.

Will Do Their Best

General Wavell Sends A Message To People Of London

London.—The armies of the Middle East will do their best to ensure that the weapons forged by the people of Britain and placed in their hands shall be used successfully in defeating our enemies and hastening victory," Sir Archibald Wavell, commander-in-chief of the British forces in the Middle East, said in a message reported by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The message was sent to London on the occasion of War Weapons Week, added: "We of the Middle East, many of whom have families in London, have watched proudly the way in which the people of London have withstood Hitler's onslaught."

Position Is Improving

Despatch From Libya Indicates Conditions Better For British

Sydney.—Army Minister Percy Spender said that despatches from Maj-Gen. Thomas Blamey, deputy-commander-in-chief of the Middle East, indicate the British position in Libya has improved substantially, particularly in the case of Tobruk. He said this is due to the fact the Royal Navy has greater freedom of action now British troops have been evacuated from the desert. There is no longer need for warships to cover their withdrawal.

Another reason for the improvement, he said, is the difficulty the Germans have in maintaining supply lines during the severe sandstorms which are sweeping the area.

View The Damage

The King And Queen Visit West-ern Front

London.—The King and Queen visited Western Front today to view the damage caused by German raids. Later the King visited the damaged House of Commons. Their Majesties had been in the Abbey looking at piles of rubble covering the spot where four years ago they were crowned.

Then the King drove alone to the houses of parliament. He stood beside the charred ruins of the speaker's chair and gazed at the mass of twisted girders and broken stone-work in the debating chamber.

Bomb Wrecks German Store

Bucharest.—Two unexplained explosions occurring in quick succession wrecked a German book store near the royal palace on Bucharest's main streets and damaged the office of the newspaper Vring. There were no casualties reported.

Lindbergh Writings Banned

Toronto.—Toronto board of control unanimously approved a motion of Controller Hamilton that it recommend the public library board be requested to remove from library shelves all writings of Charles Lindbergh.

Egg Production Higher

Ottawa.—Total egg production on Canadian farms during 1940 was ahead of the previous year, with 236,108,000 dozen produced compared with 221,727,000 dozen in 1939, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported.

Guests Of Lord Halifax

Kansas City.—Fourteen policemen went to the movies as guests of Viscount Halifax, British ambassador, and Lady Halifax. The policemen have been escorting Lord and Lady Halifax around the city.

No Trace Of Battleship

Powerful Vessel Belonging To Italy Believed Sunk By British
About a British flagship—Italy's powerful 35,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto is generally believed by the British navy to have been sunk. Frequent British radio reconnaissance over Italian reports since the battle of Matapan March 28 have failed to disclose any trace of the vessel.

The apparent failure of Italian radio broadcasts to refer to any return to port by the battleship after the battle of Matapan strengthens this belief.

No Film Star

Scottish Farmer Declines To Play The Hero Part

Glasgow.—With a cut "I'm no warrior to be a film star," the Scottish farmer David McClean declined to re-enact for news reels men his part in the capture of Rudolf Hess. One cameraman said he'd return later and McClean said: "I'll need to be kept longer. All you people coming to see me are for my work and you're more trouble than that German ever was."

FLIGHT OF HESS IS PLAYED UP BY B.B.C. ANNOUNCER

London.—With an incomparable splash at hand—Rudolf Hess and his flight to Scotland—the British Broadcasting Corporation pulled out the stops in a 10-a-day schedule of broadcasts designed to keep the Nazi leaders in an agony of doubt and fear as to what their erstwhile colleague was doing and saying in his hidden refuge.

Like the author of a serial thriller, British sought to get the utmost in suspense and mystery from the fantastic affair, at the same time leaving the world for the moment in doubt as to whether the former Hitler "shadow" was to be considered hero or villain.

Hess, declared an official of the BBC in a remark characteristic of this opening series, already was speaking and writing "words which may make a German high command sweat."

There was no effort to conceal that the broadcaster and the hands of the affair in general were intended to build up the greatest possible unrest among German listeners.

No opportunity was lost to impress that Hess must have had the help of many persons to escape; that his plane had a special gasoline tank fitted; that it all was symptomatic of an ultimate breakdown of German faith in Hitler.

On and on went the BBC, teasing Nazi curiosity, raising suspicion within Germany: "Hess wasn't a mere politician but the most intimate friend of Fuehrer, who knows him in his intimate most."

"What facts did he know which led him to betray the friendship of a lifetime and endanger the structure of the Reich which he helped to build?"

"... We regard the Hess action as a symptom of the deep internal enmities and strains in the leadership of the Third Reich."

"These discourses are disguised from Germany by German propaganda and German military power..."

BOMBS FELL, BUT HE SINGS ON

Glasgow.—Sir Patrick Dallas, lord provost of Glasgow, called Rudolf Hess "probably the chief criminal plotter against our country" and declared that "too much sentiment should not be displayed over the arrival of the deputy Fuehrer."

"The people of Britain shouldn't forget the 14 countries which have been overrun and crucified largely as a result of Hess' plotting," the lord provost commented at the opening of an exhibition of Royal Air Force photographs.

"Hess has come to this country not for love of us but for love of his own skin. We mustn't let him divert us from our effort in increasing production with a view to winning the war."

A group of children gathered around an air raid warhead after the latter had hauled a bird cage from the ruins of a house demolished during a one-plane air raid of London. Miraculously, the bird was alive, kept on singing.

CHURCHILL'S DEPUTY

Determined to throw "every ounce of power" into Britain's war effort at a critical moment, Prime Minister Winston Churchill has elevated Lord Beaverbrook to the post of minister of state, a newly created portfolio which makes the Canadian visitor "vice-premier and dictator over the British home front."

He expressed hope that in debate over losses at sea of goods manufactured in United States both Britons and Americans "realize that the mere statement of sinkings of ships from America does not tell the whole story."

"It only proves, as does the successful transport of troops to the Middle East, the protective power of adequate convoys," he said.

"Such figures do not show the necessity of selection. They do not disclose what food may have been taken from the children of Britain to give her soldiers arms."

"They tell only a small part of the battle of the Atlantic and of the shipping problem to be faced in the prosecution of total war. It is only strength through unity."

The ambassador declared that "no far, the totalitarians have been appalled by our success."

"They have broken and breaking their promises," warning that "when dictators conspire together men and women of good will everywhere must act together."

Battle Of The Atlantic

John Winant Says This Is Not Britain's Fight Alone

London.—John Winant, United States ambassador to Great Britain, told the English-speaking union that "freedom loving and peace loving people of this earth are coming to realize that this is not Britain's fight alone," and that their destinies must depend on the way they made of their navies.

"I expressed hope that in debate over losses at sea of goods manufactured in United States both Britons and Americans 'realize that the mere statement of sinkings of ships from America does not tell the whole story.'"

"It only proves, as does the successful transport of troops to the Middle East, the protective power of adequate convoys," he said.

"Such figures do not show the necessity of selection. They do not disclose what food may have been taken from the children of Britain to give her soldiers arms."

"They tell only a small part of the battle of the Atlantic and of the shipping problem to be faced in the prosecution of total war. It is only strength through unity."

The ambassador declared that "no far, the totalitarians have been appalled by our success."

"They have broken and breaking their promises," warning that "when dictators conspire together men and women of good will everywhere must act together."

No Sentiment

Says Rudolf Hess Chief Plotter Of Nazi Party

Glasgow.—Sir Patrick Dallas, lord provost of Glasgow, called Rudolf Hess "probably the chief criminal plotter against our country" and declared that "too much sentiment should not be displayed over the arrival of the deputy Fuehrer."

"The people of Britain shouldn't forget the 14 countries which have been overrun and crucified largely as a result of Hess' plotting," the lord provost commented at the opening of an exhibition of Royal Air Force photographs.

"Hess has come to this country not for love of us but for love of his own skin. We mustn't let him divert us from our effort in increasing production with a view to winning the war."

Warns Japan

Japanese Must Recognize British Rights In China
London.—Foreign Secretary Eden warned Japan that British economic restrictions against her would not be eased unless Japan recognizes British rights in China.

He said instructions to this effect have been sent to the British ambassador at Tokyo.

Both the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Craigie, and the United States envoy, Joseph Grew, conferred separately with Foreign Minister Matsuzaki, said a dispatch from Tokyo. Sir J. Wavell Minto, Conservative, said the house would be "very grateful" for his statement on Japan as showing "determination in policy which is very desirable."

Then, he asked, "will he give us assurance that policy will be pursued with determination in the future?"

"Yes," Mr. Eden responded and cheered. "The honorable gentleman may be quite sure we will do our best."

Japan Might Object

Appointment Of Australian Minister To China Considered Unfriendly Move

Melbourne.—A spokesman for the Japanese people to Australia said that the Japanese people would not welcome the appointment of an Australian minister to China as an action friendly to Japan.

He said the appointment was Australia's own business but that in view of the present war between China and Japan it would not be interpreted as a friendly move.

BRITISH NAVY IS STILL IN CONTROL OF THE SEA LANES

Aboard a British Warship in the Mediterranean.—For six days German and Italian airplanes conducted an unrelenting blitzkrieg on the British Mediterranean fleet and failed completely.

The series of engagements between fleets of warships and a fleet of warships proved that the British navy still controls the Mediterranean and the results of this action the full details of which cannot be revealed—may mark the turning point of the war in this area.

Although repeatedly "bunk" by the radios of Berlin and Rome, the Mediterranean fleet has just completed one of the most daring sweeps it has undertaken in Italy's "mare nostrum." The German and Italian forces, on considerable supplies and credit despite the fleet having been engaged primarily in the non-offensive action of convoying.

Throughout the six days the fleet was in an almost constant state of alarm as enemy aircraft attempted to destroy them. Attacks by the fighter planes drove them all off, shooting down approximately 15 and inflicting serious damage on a number of others that it is doubtful they were able to return to their bases. The British losses comprised two planes and the pilot of one was rescued.

On the third day, a squadron of light vessels left the fleet to bombard Benghazi, German-Italian base in Libya. En route they intercepted two Italian supply vessels which they destroyed with spectacular results. A 3,000 to 4,000 ton ammunition ship exploded in a great burst of flame and smoke. The other vessel, carrying fuel for the German mechanized forces in Libya, settled rapidly and broke into flames before sinking.

These light war vessels then turned their attention to Benghazi harbor, bombarding it for nearly an hour. The answering fire from shore batteries was weak and had no result. Several ships in the harbor were hit and a number of fires were started.

During the night of our first day, we sighted an illuminated hospital ship which was allowed to continue unmolested after a close scrutiny to make sure she was not a fake.

On the third day the aerial blitz began with the appearance of British enemy planes appearing at 8 a.m. These were forced to retire by the fleet fighters without doing more than spitting the fleet. Two hours later, five bombers attacked the fleet. Four were shot down and the other was believed to have been severely damaged. At 2:45 p.m. four squadrons of German planes attacked again, again were repulsed by the fleet fighters. The number shot down in this battle was not ascertained because visibility was poor.

INCREASES IN DEFENSE TAX WERE ADOPTED

Ottawa.—Step increases in the national defense tax were adopted by the House of Commons in committee after a heavy barrage of protest against the tax from all parties.

Counter proposals ranging from complete conscription of all incomes above $2,500 a year to higher tax rates on medium and large incomes were offered as an alternative to the defense tax which applies to incomes of $600 for single persons and $1,300 for married persons.

Appeals to have the exemption limit raised were rejected by Finance Minister Flanagan. He said there would be no purpose in delaying consideration of the clause on the chance the government might have a change of mind.

The budget proposals to increase the national defense tax were said to a person who now pays two per cent, will pay five per cent, and one who pays three per cent will pay seven per cent.

Mr. Flanagan said the main purpose of all the taxes being imposed was to raise a large sum of money. A secondary purpose was to raise the tax on incomes. It was difficult to say which motive bulked largest in each case.

To raise the needed money the government had to go to the large taxpayer, people who were receiving lower incomes.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) said anybody with an income of $500 a year had to watch every cent.

It seemed at one stage of the debate that an amendment to the defense tax increases but no vote was asked when the question was finally put, and the committee went on to the tax on dividends paid to non-residents.

The minister was applauded when he gave notice of an amendment to the 10 per cent tax on travel tickets, exempting members of the services and their families from the tax.

Because this had been universally urged by members of the house, the minister said, he was assuming it safe to advise the transportation companies to act at once on the change pending adoption of the amendment. His announcement drew applause from the house.

Opposition to the increased national defense tax was initiated by Conservative House Leader Hanson, who declared it was too much of a burden on the low-salary classes.

But Mr. Flanagan said it was more than a sales tax increase which gave up the tax on income, a taxable income or not, and it meant an additional $80,000,000 revenue which must be obtained somewhere.

Troop Concentration

80,000 British Troops Reach West

New York.—Crew members of a freighter reported on arrival here that between 3,000 and 5,000 British troops had been landed in French North Africa, British West Africa, on the passenger steamship Monarch of Bermuda last April 26.

Crew members added that more than 30,000 British troops are concentrated at Freetown, 500 miles from Dakar, French-African port considered of vital importance in the war in the Middle East.

Women Vote In Quebec

Quebec.—The legislative assembly gave approval by a 39-vote to 10 vote to a government bill which would enable women to exercise a electoral right of franchise in recent districts where elections were held before new lists are prepared.

BUY A VICTORY BOND

When you buy a Victory Bond this year you are not being a miser, hoarding wealth, but a man of foresight and thrift. Your purchase indicates that you have thought this thing through, that you have planned wisely, managed your affairs economically and saved conscientiously.

There are several reasons for buying Victory Bonds which will appeal to every reasonable man and woman. We should buy for our Country's sake, because it needs our help to remain our Country.

We should buy Victory Bonds for our own sake, because work and wages are more plentiful that they have been for some years. Every dollar invested now is a dollar, plus interest, to spend in an assured future.

We should invest to help make things cheaper for everyone, particularly for those poorer than ourselves.

We should buy Victory Bonds because, by so doing, we set an example that makes it easier for our fellow citizens.

We should buy because every time we do so we help defeat, first, when we do not spend, and again when we lend to the nation.

Help finish the job; buy Victory Bonds.

MCCORMICK—
LINDBERGH'S BACKER

Attacking President Roosevelt for calling Col. Lindbergh a traitor to his country, the Chicago Tribune in its issue of April 28th praises Lindbergh highly and goes on to say, "Mr. Lindbergh is exposed to the comment that he is inclined to find himself at a disadvantage in his own field of speech and surpassed in it by a man he cannot out in the latter's field of science adventure and discovery."

Continuing the attack, the Tribune on May 1st carries a cartoon ridiculing the Roosevelt administration's policies of aid to Britain. This cartoon states: "The U.S. furnishes the assets—the Allies furnish the liabilities."

Col. Lindbergh has been much in the public attention of late for his radio speeches, not the more dignified man to Britain and Canada is Col. Robert McCormick, owner of the Chicago Tribune. It is he who backs Lindbergh. For every Lindbergh radio speech there are several Chicago Tribune editorials sounding the same note. Not long ago Lindbergh spent a week-end at Col. McCormick's and it was the Chicago Tribune radio station which he later used to broadcast his views against aiding Britain. Without the McCormick support, Lindbergh's campaign would doubtless soon come to an end.—Huntingdon, Ont., Glenier.

COULD HAVE PAID FOR LAST
WAR ON PRESENT TAX

(From Lethbridge Herald)

The Herald made the statement the other day in discussing the 1911 budget that, if we had paid taxes during the last war in the same manner as we are endeavouring to meet the cost of the present war out of current taxation, we would not only have paid the whole cost of the Great War while it was in progress, but we would have wiped out the pre-war debt and come out at the end of the struggle with a balance in the treasury.

This year Hon. Mr. Heley is adding Canadians to raise by way of taxation $1,150,000,000. Last year we raised some $850,000,000 by taxation. In the two years we will have taken two billion dollars out of our national economy by way of taxation to pay for the cost of the war and the cost of operating the Federal Government in its domestic departments.

Apply that two billion dollars against war expenditures in 1914-15.

Here is what Canada spent then year by year:

1915—$ 68.8 millions,
1916—106.2 millions,
1917—306.5 millions,
1918—343.8 millions,
1919—446.5 millions,
Total—$1,322.8 millions.
That is, the last war cost $1,322,800,000 up to the end of 1919, or one complete year after armistice. At the beginning of the Great War we owed $400,000,000 national debt.

To wipe out the whole war and pre-war debt would have required $1,722,800,000. In 1930 and 1941 the people of Canada are raising by way of taxation nearly $200,000,000 more than this total amount.

The facts are plain. In the last war we failed to tax ourselves anything like the amount required to pay the cost. We kept taxes low and borrowed heavily. We are not making this mistake this time. We are taxing heavily, and borrowing only what we feel we cannot raise by a heavy impost while the war is in progress.

ANOTHER TOKEN OF FRIENDSHIP BY U.S.A.

"America's security is built on Britain's sea power". The quotation is not taken from any statement made by British representatives, but it is taken from material prepared by the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. Actually the quotation is one of several which appear on match covers freely distributed throughout the Western section of the United States.

A. A. Gardner, assistant general passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railway, returning to Montreal following a business trip to Des Moines, Iowa, brought a supply of these handy match covers so popular across the line, and offered them as examples of public opinion in the important western area.

The outside covers printed in patriotic colors, of red, white and blue carry an appeal to "Act Now—Defend America by Helping Britain."

Inside the cover the leading statement is that quoted in the foregoing followed by this: "Britain's Fleet Defends the Atlantic—Great Britain, therefore, is our first line of Defence." A request to write or wire Senators and Representatives urging all possible aid to Great Britain and her Allies follows.

"GIVE US THE TOOLS . . ."

"... Next to cowardice and treachery, over-confidence leading to neglect or slothfulness is the worst of martial crimes. . . We shall not fling or filter; we shall not weaken or tire. Neither the sudden shock of battle nor the long-drawn trials of vigilance and exertion will wear us down. Give us the tools and we will finish the job."

CANADA MUST BORROW
$600,000,000

A Statement by the Minister of Finance

In money alone, this war is costing Canada in round figures, $4,000,000 a day. That is three and one-quarter times the daily cost of the last year of the last war. This conflict costs so much more because it is a battle of giant, swift machines . . . as well as of men. And to build other than the very best machines would be futile. They must be worthy of our men.

Canada dare not . . . and will not . . . sacrifice men for lack in quality or quantity of fighting machines. Hence we must produce them on a scale hitherto undreamed of.

To do this, Canada needs now to borrow from her citizens at least $600,000,000 in addition to the revenue raised by taxes. To obtain this money Canada will on June 2nd offer Victory Bonds.

Fortunately, Canadians have the money to buy these Victory Bonds. This is shown by a greatly expanded national income and by record savings deposits.

If every person who has savings or who can make payments out of wages or income will invest in Victory Bonds, the Loan will be quickly subscribed. But the wholehearted support of every citizen is necessary.

What Canadians have done before, Canadians can and will do again. Our population was less than nine millions in 1918 and 1919. Yet in November, 1918, our people invested $616,000,000 in Victory Bonds. Eleven months later, in October, 1919, they invested $572,000,000. The total subscribed for Victory Bonds in those two loans was $1,188,000,000. This year, with our population increased to more than twelve millions, the nation that did it before can do it again—and in greater measure.

The terms of the Loan will be announced May 31st. Get ready to buy every Bond that you can.

DAUGHTER OF DESTINY

—BY—

CHAPTER VII.

The party that evening was even more elaborate than the one before. The fact that the instant she stepped into the spacious drawing room, Yara, in a new dress of gold lame that made her look like a ray of desert sun herself, was holding special court for all the members of her cast and for several of the more important guests from the Palm Springs Hotel. People whose approval would mean much.

Heating in the wide, arched doorway, Devona watched unnoticed for a moment, and intended to Yara's skilfully cadenced laughter.

"Reba, darling," she was saying to one guest weaving in smiles and too many diamonds and yards of billowing gray chiffon, "I want you to meet Paul Darnell. He's the vicious first-nighter who simply never has kind word to throw to struggling actors."

Paul Darnell! Devona had seen that name often on the Stage and Screen page of a Los Angeles newspaper. One of the outstanding critics. His judgments would mean "Fools in Paradise" as a hit—or a flop—overnight! No wonder Yara was turning on her charms full strength. Mr. Darnell lifted one dark eyebrow, bowed gallantly. "I save my kind words for artists like you, Miss Yara."

Talbot discovered Devona a moment later and thrust a frosty glass into her hand.

"Here, drink this and see if it won't do something for that woe-begone look on your sweet mug." He grinned and sat down beside her. "Why are you hiding off here in the corner?"

Devona slipped the drink, tried to smile. "Oh, trying to keep out of the way."

"Oh-huh. I thought I saw the cold Darnell give you the cold shoulder a moment ago," he nodded, took Devona's hand. "Don't let that long-haired sour-grape get you down."

"I won't. But I do wish I knew more about the theatre. I feel so—so out of things."

He smiled down at her and Devona really tried to notch her chin higher. But she couldn't force down the cocktail. And a little later when the delicious drink didn't tempt her, she only toyed with the food and fought a desperate desire to escape from that long, brilliant table, fly back to the haven of her own room.

After coffee and liqueurs had been served, Bernard gave her the signal and she and Tal moved, as if aimlessly, toward the piano. She was an adult in a very real way. He showed them she did belong.

"Make it casual," Bernard had suggested earlier. "Just you and Brasher more or less to the piano after dinner while every one's bored stiff trying to keep up scintillating conversation. It'll catch on. You see? It did catch on, too. Little by little each of the twosomes or threesomes scattered around the long drawing room, interrupted their talk, their bright, brittle laughter, to listen. Until finally the whole group paid homage to Devona's really lovely, young voice by listening, not politely, but really caught in spite of themselves.

"Swell," Talbot murmured sotto voce, winked at her as they finished the first number.

"Delightful," some woman said above the patter of applause.

"More."

In the middle of the second number, Devona realized that some one else had come to stand in the arched doorway. From the tall of her eyes, she made sure what it was the sudden leap of her heart had told her. Dale!

But he wasn't expected until the next morning. Still—there they met for a fleeting instant—there he was the smile warmer, his tall slenderness better looking than she'd remembered. He smiled a greeting, gave her a smacking little salute.

After that, she sang for him. Sang for the pleased surprise in his face, for the smile that lit behind his smile. And for the swelling tide of happiness within herself that simply had to find expression.

When Devona had sung all the numbers they'd planned and several more besides, her little audience finally released her. She bowed her last thanks graciously, slipped away from the piano toward Yara, anxious for the first word of approval she must now have heard.

"Very nice," Yara drawled as Devona drew near. "I didn't know we'd have such an exhibitionist in our midst."

For an instant Devona couldn't believe the friendly criticism she heard in her mother's voice. Not until she looked straight into her eyes and saw there cold, measureless fury!

For a moment Devona looked into Dale's clear blue eyes, while her heart stood on tiptoe. Then suddenly nothing was wrong. Nothing mattered now, except what his eyes were saying.

"Thanks so much. And now Paul dear, what was that you were telling us before we were interrupted?" Dale caught up with her just as she sank, trembling, to a shadow-hid bench, drew a long, sobbing breath of the balmy night air.

"Lovely, Devona. Why didn't you tell us you were a songstress?" he took her hand in his.

"I'm not. But Mr. Bernard thought you might be amused. That Yara—might—"

"Annoyed is no word for it. You have talent, young lady. Real talent," Devona shrugged. As if talent counted for anything. "Thanks, mister. You're very kind," she managed lightly, but her spirits sagged heavily.

"No, I'm not. You have talent and beauty and youth and—"

"What! Thinking of me instead of dope runners?" Devona teased, trying to take her cue from his light banter. But it was no use. A gleaming tear escaped from the corner of her eye, slipped stealthily down her cheek.

Dale tipped her face up so he could look into her eyes. "Something's haywire," he said, serious now. "Aren't you going to tell me?" For a moment, Devona just looked deep into those clear blue eyes while her heart stood on tip-toe. Then suddenly, nothing was wrong. Nothing mattered, even. Except what his eyes were saying.

Dale's grasp on her arm tightened. "You're lovely, Devona. So lovely I can hardly believe you're real."

A little silence—a lovely, warm silence—enveloped them into a special little world of their own. While their eyes said things their lips hadn't found words for yet.

And then, shattering, Yara's voice broke into that magic world and it fell into a thousand glittering fragments.

"Dale, darling! I didn't know you'd arrived."

Dale stiffened and turned away. "Hello, Yara. Yes, I got through a little early so—here I am."

"Devona, my angel," Yara's voice was clear and smooth but still cold. "Will you excuse Dale now?" Yara stood silhouetted in the open doorway, the soft light behind her, casting a halo through the soft, gold tendrils of her hair. "I want to talk to you, Dale, about the new set."

"The right with you," Dale replied, and turning to Devona, "You're not forgetting our date for a swim tomorrow morning, are you?"

Devona shook her head. Forgetting it! It had been the one bright light in this whole strangely dark week. "Of course not."

"Good. Daybreak, then. Two pools' length. See you then," Dale caught her hand, pressed it firmly. "Goodnight and sweet dreams."

Then he was gone, following Yara into the lighted room beyond. Devona stood one hand pressed against her heart to quiet its thunder. Sweet dreams. She must be dreaming right thing's haywire," he said, serious now. "Aren't you going to tell me?" For a moment, Devona just looked deep into those clear blue eyes while her heart stood on tip-toe. Then suddenly nothing was wrong. Nothing mattered now, except what his eyes were saying.

"Thanks so much. And now Paul dear, what was that you were telling us before we were interrupted?" Dale caught up with her just as she sank, trembling, to a shadow-hid bench, drew a long, sobbing breath of the balmy night air.

Parcels For Overseas

Valuable Tips Given To Senders From One Who Knows

If you are sending parcels of food to friends or relatives overseas, send two five-pound packages instead of one ten-pounder. The ten-pounder may get lost, but one of the five-pounders is almost certain to get through. This was one of the suggestions made by Captain T. W. Jones, a Y.M.C.A. Auxiliary Services worker with the 1st Canadian Division who recently returned from England. He gave a number of other tips to senders of overseas parcels.

Send butter in sealed tins, cheese with tin foil wrapping, for no cheese is available in England; chocolate bars are more than welcome; nuts are a delicacy; a handful of raisins, tea, coffee, cocoa, sugar and stuff for paper napkins are more than appreciated. The Ministry of Supply recently announced that parcels are not subject to duty and are not deducted from rations.

Capt. Jones reports that there is plenty of substantial food, such as potatoes, bread and such like, but variety is lacking. Babies are raised on fruit juice rather than orange juice. Onions are so scarce that they are sometimes the top prize at benefit bridge parties and a man who carries a bunch of onions to his friend is likely to get a far better welcome than one with a bouquet of flowers.

Made Dramatic Escape

Nine Interned Armen Got Away From French Somaliland Camp

The dramatic escape of Flying Officer K. A. Lawrence of Quebec together with eight other airmen, held in an internment camp in French Somaliland was revealed when the group rejoined their squadrons.

The Canadian, a member of the Royal Air Force, escaped with Sgt. W. H. Tomlin of Liverpool, Sgt. A. R. Houston of Glasgow, and six South Africans.

Lawrence, Tomlin and Houston were forced to land after bombing Dessie, Ethiopia. One bomb exploded as the machine touched the earth, and the Canadian officer receiving splinters in the head. The South Africans made a forced landing in the same area.

On the night of April 15, with medicine bottles of water crammed in their pockets, they crept past sentries through a triple row of barbed wire, groping through darkened streets of the native quarter of Jibuti where dogs howled dimly at every footstep.

They obtained the services of Greek guides and made for open country. Just before daybreak, weary and footsore with the heavy going in loose sand, they crossed the frontier into British Somaliland, where a patrol boat later took them to Aden.

Saved Plane From Destruction

Pilot Of Typhoon Fighter Was Awarded The George Medal

Phil L. Philip G. Lucas, who conducted Test Flights on Britain's new Typhoon fighter plane, has been awarded the George Medal for "saving a plane from destruction," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

Official announcement of the award said Phil L. Lucas saved an aircraft "by his great courage and presence of mind" during a test flight.

The new fighter model, officially stated to be in full production, is reported to be "faster and better armed than any R.A.F. machine now in service," the BBC said. "The speed of the Typhoon is known to be well over 400 m.p.h."

Not All Mechanized

Despite mechanization, there are still horses and mules in the Australian Imperial forces in the Middle East and units of the "Purple Corps" service operate throughout Australia to send them "first aid."

Some of Napoleon's letters were so illegible that they were mistaken for maps of a battlefield, says a London historian.

Germany Has 3,000,000 Foreigners Employed In Some Capacity

The German official report shows over 3,000,000 foreigners are now employed in German agriculture, mining and industry. War prisoners and civilian workers from occupied countries have been assigned principally to mining and industrial enterprises. It is officially stated that approximately two-thirds of the foreigners are engaged in outdoor activities but many are employed as bakers, butchers, shoemakers and in other indoor pursuits.

Would Not Pay

Ottawa wants that there is no point in collecting tin cans as war salvage, for there is no delinquent plant in Canada and it would not pay to establish one. The separating of tin from other metal in the cans is a specialized process and in a country as large as Canada a number of plants would be necessary if transportation costs were not to be prohibitive.

NEW GOLD AREA IS FOUND IN FAR NORTH

Discoveries of gold which show promise of commercial importance are reported by the department of mines and resources to have been made in the vicinity of Snare and Emile Rivers and Wray Lake in the Northwest Territories. Already a total of 500 claims have been staked in the new field which is about 150 miles north of Yellowknife settlement, and preparations have been made for the carrying on of extensive exploratory and development work during the coming summer.

Mercury Gold Mines Limited is at present stripping the overburden from its showings at Emile River and is sampling, mapping and diamond drilling the veins. Later the company will sink prospect shafts. A small mining plant is on its way to the property and a power site has been located about seven miles from the claims.

Prior to 1929 the principal mineral developments in the Northwest Territories were the location and partial development of lead-zinc deposits near Pine Point, Great Slave Lake, and the discovery of oil at a point about fifty miles below Norman on the Mackenzie River, where there are now three producing wells and a refinery. During that year deposits of copper were staked at Hunter Bay, Great Bear Lake, but it was the discovery in 1930 of the ores of radium and silver at Echo Bay on the east side of Great real incentive to a search for minerals in the Territories.

A few years later gold was discovered in the Yellowknife River area. It was from the Con property in this area that the first gold brick was produced in the Northwest Territories, and was poured in September, 1938. By the end of February, 1941 this mine and the Rycon and Negus mines in the same area had produced gold to a total value of more than $4,500,000. Three other properties in the area are nearing the production stage.

In September, 1940, Slave Lake Gold Mines Limited resumed development of its claims on Outpost Island, and this property was brought into production early in 1941, when a mill with a daily capacity of 50 tons of ore was put in operation.

CONTROL OF POTATO BUGS

The common potato bugs or Colorado Potato Beetle, that round-backed, hard shelled beetle with black and yellow stripes on its back, are well known to most people. From early June until late August they attack potatoes, tomatoes and sometimes other plants. They eat the foliage, and if very numerous, will completely defoliate the plant.

To control potato bugs dust the plants with a poison dust made by mixing together 15 parts of Hydrated Lime and 1 part Paris Green. Another good dust is made by taking one part of Arsenate of Lead and 15 parts of Hydrated Lime. The dust should be applied early in the morning or just after a rain.

A spray made up of 2 teaspoonfuls of Paris Green and 1 gallon of water is also effective. Mix the Paris Green with a little bit of water to make a paste and then stir in thoroughly into the full gallon.

An Invitation.

During the past winter 4,870 different samples of farmers' seed have been sent in to The North-West Line Elevators Association for germination tests. As a result of the prevalence of frost damage in northern areas, particularly to oats and barley, the results of the tests have been of great importance to farmers availing themselves of the service.

About 2,500 farmers have asked us to make growing tests in the field in order to determine the varietal purity of their stocks. We have undertaken to do this for wheat varieties only. In oats, varietal purity is hard to establish and, since it is largely a matter of feed, purity is of small concern except to seed growers. Barley is more difficult than wheat, and we hesitate to burden university or government cerealists unduly.

We shall, therefore, have about 2,000 samples of wheat seed planted for purity tests. In nearly all cases, the plots will be identical with the crops the individual farmers concerned are growing, since they voluntarily sent their own seed in to us. The plots will be located at the University of Manitoba.

I take this opportunity of inviting farmers and others who may be in Winnipeg this summer to visit our office, laboratory and plots. Our address is 763 Grain Exchange Building. At the same time you can visit the Dominion Grain Inspection Offices and the Grain Research Laboratory of the Board of Grain Commissioners.
